COMP GROWTH RATES
Third quarter 2003 and 2002

Economy grew 4.4% in 3rd quarter

By Carlo C. Duran and Gil C. Hernandez Jr.

Tail-fin rally and a weak peso kept the 3rd quarter growth at 4.4% from 4.1% in the period last year, despite buoyant domestic demand, the Bureau of Economic Analysis said.

Domestic demand, particularly in the services sector, was the main driver of growth, with the private sector contributing 4.5% to the 4.4% growth, the BEA said. The public sector, however, contributed 0.1% to the growth, the BEA said.

Domestic demand, however, was not helped by a 0.1% increase in government spending, which was offset by a 0.1% decrease in private investment. The government's contribution to growth was 0.1%, the BEA said.

Part 4, which involves a more philosophical analysis of the text, is the most interesting. It is here that Tompkins discusses the text's engagement with the idea of the "self" and the "other." She argues that the text is a "self-portrait" of the author, and that it is a "portrait of the other." This is a very interesting argument, and it is one that is well-supported by the text.

The author would like to thank Dr. Robert L. Brown for his helpful comments on earlier drafts of this manuscript.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and blood pressure (BP) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and a training group. The training group performed a 10-week training program consisting of three sessions per week of aerobic exercise. The control group did not exercise. The HR and BP were measured at the beginning and end of the 10-week period. The results showed that the training group had a significant decrease in HR and BP compared to the control group. The HR decreased from 72 to 68 beats per minute, and the BP decreased from 120/80 to 110/70 mmHg. The control group showed no significant change in HR and BP. These results suggest that a 10-week training program can effectively reduce HR and BP in sedentary, middle-aged men.

These results also indicate that the use of a single, unidirectional, flow of information is not the best way to manage a team. The results suggest that a more complex, bidirectional, flow of information is more effective. This is consistent with the findings of other research that suggests that a more complex, bidirectional, flow of information is more effective than a single, unidirectional, flow of information.
